

GENERAL C. M. CLAY

Sage and Hero of White Hall, Warrior and Statesman, Crosses the Divide—Once Ambassador to Court of Russia.

Richmond, Ky., July 23.—General Cassius Marcellus Clay, the sage and hero of White Hall, near this city, died at 9:10 o'clock last night of exhaustion due to old age. He was born in the year of Pope Leo's birth, and was 93 years old. At the bedside, when death ensued were all but one of the General's children. The end was painless and General Clay was conscious nearly until the last moment.

General Clay for many years was one of the most conspicuous and unique characters in the political and social life of Kentucky. He was Ambassador to Russia under Lincoln, and created a sensation in diplomatic circles there by refusing to remove his hat in the presence of the Czar, because the Czar did not uncover his head in the presence of the foreign representatives.

Complete arrangements for the funeral have not been made, but the body will be buried either Friday or Saturday in Richmond cemetery. Funeral services will be held in the Richmond Baptist church, which General Clay's grandfather, namely, General Green Clay, who commanded the Kentucky troops at Ft. Mifflin in 1812, gave to the congregation.

In addition to three trained nurses, Sally Clay Bennett, Laura Clay, Mary B. Clay the daughters of the General, and Brutus J. Clay, his son, were at the bedside when he died. Mrs. Annie Clay Crenshaw, the other daughter, is in Richmond, Va.

The life of General Clay has been filled with more stirring events than fall to the ordinary lot of men. He has of recent years been chiefly known to the country from his sensational matrimonial experiments and the vivid remembrance which time cannot effect of his earlier personal encounters. He has always been a man of decided convictions, and has been in the habit of expressing his opinion of men and things at all times and under all circumstances. Personally as near fearless as a man was ever created, and living in a community where an appeal to deadly weapons was the natural result of a personal insult, he as fought more desperate battles than any man of his time. These occurrences have not made up all of the life of this man. He has rendered to his country distinguished services at home and abroad, and has despite his violent methods and erratic temper, had a more than ordinary effect upon the political thought of his day—a day which may be said to have ended with the close of his services as Minister to St. Petersburg in 1869.

Cassius M. Clay comes from distinguished stock, and has lived all his life in the home at White Hall, near Richmond. His father, General Green Clay, came from Virginia before the admission of the state of Kentucky to the Union, and had served in the Virginia legislature, being a member when the federal Constitution was ratified. The elder Clay entered a large tract of land, on which the present family homestead of White Hall stands. He was given important commands in the early wars against the Indians, and led an expedition to the relief of General Harrison, then besieged at Ft. Meigs, and fighting his way through he secured the command, afterward commanding the post.

Several years ago he created a sensation by marrying Dora Richardson, 16, who as since been referred to as the child wife of General Clay. She resided at Whitehall with the aged general only a brief period, then deserted him and obtained a divorce. Then she married Riley Brock a young farmer. About a month ago Brock was killed by a train in Illinois and it was rumored that the general had become reconciled to his "ex-child wife" and they had contemplated to again marry. Theatrical promoters have made alluring offers to Mrs. Dora Clay Brock to take the leading part in a play entitled scenes at Whitehall but it is said that she refused.

Recently General Clay was declared insane through effort of his children and a committee was appointed to take charge of his estate. He several times summoned doctors only to refuse to see them when they came. He allowed a trained nurse to take charge of his room several weeks ago, but sent her away when he conceived the idea that she was responsible for the removal of his weapons.

JEW OF RUSSIA

Have Trouble Ahead as Result of the Protest Against the Kishineff Massacre Says the Liverpool Post—Further Oppression is Promised.

Liverpool, July 23.—The Post today sees great trouble ahead for the Jews of Russia, as a result of the protest against the Kishineff massacre. The paper says:

"Demonstrations abroad against the Kishineff massacre are said to be likely to result in serious injury to the Russian Jews. They have given rise to great displeasure in the ruling classes, and just as the infamous May laws against the Jews are believed to have been the Russian answer to foreign protests in the early eighties so fresh anti-Jewish legislation is stated to be pending as a reply to the action of President Roosevelt and others. Reports have reached London to the effect that the Jews in Russia are in a state of panic. Among the measures expected are the expulsion of Jews from Moscow and St. Petersburg, the exclusion of the Jews from higher educational establishments and the army and the imposition of a heavy money tax on the Jewish population.

in sight that his parents may be heard from.

Up to 3 p. m. Thursday no application had been made for the appointment of an administrator to collect the insurance and turn it over to the county but it is understood that this action will be taken.

It is said that Snelling had $500 in the Prudential company.

San Francisco, July 23.—Tommy Ryan, middle-weight champion, will second Corbett in his fight with Jeffries.

Rome, July 23.—In the pre-conclave campaign Cardinal Vannutelli is today attracting most attention. It is believed here that Cardinal Gibbons will support Vannutelli.

Scare crows are now placed upon slate roofs in Victoria, B. C. The crows, which swarm on the beach and dig for clams, fly over the building and drop the clams on the roof, by this means breaking the shells and leaving the meat free to be eaten. In many cases when the clams were dropped the slate was broken.

IN THE RAIN

President Roosevelt and Son Take a Horseback Ride to the Home of An Uncle.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 23.—President Roosevelt and his eldest son, Theodore, started from Sagamore Hill in a rain storm this morning for a horseback ride to Sayville, on the south side of the island. They will remain over night the guest of Robert B. Roosevelt, the President's uncle, and will start for home before dawn tomorrow morning. Mrs. Roosevelt had intended to take the ride with her husband, but when she woke up and found the rain pattering on the roof, she decided that it would be better to stay at home.

PUBLIC

Allowed to View Remains of Pope Leo But Only a Glance Permitted—Body Lies in State.

Rome, July 23.—The general public was allowed to view the remains of Pope Leo from six this morning till 2 this afternoon and thousands passed around the bier in St. Peters. The catafalque was so placed that the point of the feet were more than behind the chapel's iron railing, so that it was impossible to kiss the sacred shoes or even to kneel. Only a glance was allowed those who passed. The body was clothed in full pontifical robes and the face of the dead was composed and even younger looking than in life. For three days the body will lie in state.

CHINA

NOW DENIES THE DEMAND OF AMERICA

To Open Ports in Manchuria Claiming That They Are Being Held by the Russian Troops.

Peking, July 23.—Prince Ching, president of the foreign office, has written to United States Minister Conger refusing to open ports in Manchuria. In his letter he dwells on the impossibility of China opening to foreigners towns which are not in her domain but which are held by Russian troops, and points out the complications which would be likely to follow.

It is believed here, however, that a compromise may be reached by including one town, Ta Tung Kao, in the new commercial treaty.

It is reported here that 128,000 troops are being mobilized from central and northern garrisons in Russia for immediate dispatch to the Far East in case of necessity. On the return of General Kuropatkin, the Russian War Minister, an extraordinary meeting of the Imperial Council of the State, to be attended by the Czar, will discuss Manchurian and cognate questions.

FOR OPEN PORTS

In Manchuria the United States Will Continue to Agitate.

Washington, July 23.—Inasmuch as the Chinese Government recently expressed its willingness to yield to the desires of the United States for open ports in Manchuria the officials here are at a loss to understand the communication sent by Prince Ching to Minister Conger refusing this concession. They have received no advice on this subject.

Washington officials continue firm in their belief that the situation ultimately will be clarified and the efforts of the United States be rewarded.

In some quarters the objections urged to the opening of ports in Prince Ching's communication are regarded as mere diplomatic quibble, designed, perhaps, to placate Russia.

No matter what fresh obstacle may intervene, our government, firm in the conviction that the principle of open door in China should be enjoyed by all nations, will continue to exert its influence in that direction.

The best, which is not always the highest priced, is the cheapest.

GOT DRUNK

And Now This Columbus Bride-Seeker Legal Separation From Her Husband W. S. Campbell.

Columbus, O., July 23.—If the Franklin county court sustains the demand of Mrs. Christina Campbell that divorce be given her from her husband William S. Campbell, and other wives follow her example, there will be fewer married folks left in the state. She alleges in her petition that William got drunken last Saturday, and thus "humiliated her in the eyes of the community."

They have been married just six weeks, and according to all accounts it was William's first foot since the wedding day. The couple live near Grove City, in this county.

The decision of the court is awaited with breathless anxiety by many husbands in Ohio who have humiliated their wives in this fashion by going on toasts on stated occasions for many years.

FARMER'S SON

Terrorized the City But Has Just Made a Full Confession to the Indiana Officers.

Columbia City, Ind., July 23.—A youthful "Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" was revealed to the police today when Fred Hess, 24, son of wealthy farmer, made a full confession of a daring attempt to blackmail S. P. Taylor by threatening to destroy a block of buildings. The young man's fiancée is prostrated by grief by the revelation. So cunningly did Hess carry on his operations that he succeeded in terrorizing the city.

Lockjaw Victims.

Cleveland, O., July 23.—Ten deaths have resulted from lockjaw in this city since July 4th, the latest victim being Joseph Stasko, 61, 150 Berg street. He died as a result of slight wound received in handling a toy pistol July 4th. "The list of fatalities is probably not yet completed," said Dr. Friedrich, head of the health department. It is possible for tetanus to develop after the lapse of a month from the time the wound is inflicted.

CAPT. EWEN

Leaves Jackson Under Escort—He Will Testify in the Jett-White Case Next Week.

Jackson, Ky., July 23.—Captain B. J. Ewen, who came here to testify before the grand jury in the arson and bribery cases, left this morning under an escort of state troops under Lieut. Clemens who accompanied him as far as Stanton and remain until Friday and on Sunday will go to Cincinnati to testify in the trials of Jett and White.

Frightful Tornado.

Patterson, N. J., July 23.—This city is fast recovering from the effects of a tornado, which swept over it yesterday and last night. This morning over 2,000 men were put to work clearing up the wreckage. The results of the tornado are not so serious as first indicated. Three persons were killed, and about 100 injured, but all of the latter will probably recover. Loss $250,000.

She Was Determined.

Harrisburg, Ky., July 23.—Rev. Postal Reeves, a widower aged 51 and Miss Bettie Cox, 20, of Casey county, were married here today. Monday Reeves called for his bride, but her mother, it is said, had put her in a rooming house and refused to let her go with him. Monday night Miss Cox made her way to the home of her father, who was in that section. The son hitched a good horse to his buggy and drove 25 miles to this city, arriving here at 1 o'clock Monday. He was met at the door of the ceremony was performed.

The Panama canal treaty provides for a cash payment of $10,000,000 to Colombia by the United States, and after a period of five years an annual rental of $250,000.

PERMISSION

Was Refused Mother Jones and She Left New York in a Defiant Mood Thursday.

New York, July 23.—"Mother" Jones with two of her lieutenants visited police headquarters today and had a conference of a half hour's duration with acting police commissioner Elstein regarding the granting of a parade permit to her and her army of textile workers. Although he pleaded with the commissioner earnestly he wasn't much impressed and told her that her "army" and its band would likely scare horses along the parade route and for that reason he deemed it advisable to without the required permit. Mother Jones returned to Hoboken in a defiant mood.

POSTMASTER

At Defiance Lashed by a Colored Woman Who Was Later Placed Under Arrest.

Defiance, O., July 23.—Charles J. Thompson, postmaster and one of the leading politicians of northern Ohio, was horsewhipped by Miss Cora Prater, colored. The woman, it is alleged, had been sending objectionable letters through the local office to prominent men.

Because she surmised that her acts had been brought to the attention of the postal authorities and one letter had been intercepted, she waylaid Mr. Thompson on the main street, and taking a buggy whip from the folds of her dress plied it across his legs. The postmaster later caused her arrest.

RECKLESS

WASTE OF THE ADAMS & SARBER MONEY

Lawyers Says He Has Not Developed Anything That Indicates Dishonesty in the Deals.

Cleveland, O., July 23.—The Adams & Sarber bankruptcy hearing is practically concluded. Attorney T. L. Johnson, for the creditors, said:

"The only thing the hearing has developed is that these men took in a very large amount of money in a remarkably short time, and wasted it most recklessly. I have developed nothing that indicates any dishonesty in their transactions. In many instances they have been too generous. All sorts of stories have reached me regarding possible hidden assets and I have followed them all out, to find them groundless. There is no reason to suspect that the evidence adduced in the hearing does not accurately describe their transactions."

"All that I see ahead as a result of the hearing is possible litigation in an effort to recover certain assets on the ground that preference was shown in their disposal."

Adams said after the hearing: "We will be doing business again shortly. I have had similar experiences about every three years for the last dozen, and am not discouraged."

Sarber was questioned regarding some lead stock supposed to be in his possession. He sold it in March for $250 losing $750 upon it. He knew of no stocks in the company's possession other than listed in the schedule of assets. He said he had never had any oil stock in a Franklin (Penn.) concern.

The Beaver Dam leases, Sarber said, represented a loss of about $12,000, of which $8,000 had been dropped at Grand Rapids in an effort to promote the Wolverine Oil company, and $2,000 at Louisville, where the Kentucky and Ohio consolidated had proven a failure. The leases cost the company $2,500. They had disposed of their equity rights in the leases to the Pittsburg and Parkersburg prior to the filing of the bankruptcy petition.

HEDGES OUSTED

Superintendent of Free Delivery Charged With Falsifying His Diary—Accused Officer Declares That His Removal Was Not Justified.

Washington, July 23.—Charles Hedges has been removed from the office of the superintendent of free delivery of the postoffice department on the charge of falsifying his diary and loaning his traveling commission.

It is charged that he reported himself at various places when in fact he was not at those places on the dates mentioned.

Mr. Hedges, while making no general denial of the charges, contended that they were not sufficient justification for removal.

Ervin H. Thorpe, postoffice inspector in charge at New York, has been designated acting superintendent of free delivery in place of Mr. Hedges.

The following official statement of the case was made public by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristol: "Hedges represented himself at various places on public business when, in fact, he was not in those places on the dates mentioned, but elsewhere, in some instances, hundreds of miles distant."

On October 25, 1900, he states under oath, in his diary, that he was at Joplin, Mo., on 'extension of free delivery service' when in fact, he was in Mansfield, O., attending the funeral of former Secretary John Sherman.

"On December 7, 1899, he reports himself at San Antonio, Tex., investigating carriers' service, while in fact he was in Mexico examining mining property."

"Hedges' false statements as to his whereabouts on these days were manifestly for the purpose of collecting per diem to which he was not entitled."

In a statement Mr. Hedges said:

"While I was assistant superintendent of free delivery, I was called to Washington to take charge of the entire service, while Mr. Machen was ill with typhoid fever. While so acting I got $2000 salary as assistant superintendent, while Mr. Machen received $3500."

"It was necessary for me to get the per diem allowance to make the services and compensation equal."

"In making my reports I never put down towns that I had not visited nor did I put down all the towns that I visited, as I was permitted to do. Thus I omitted mentioning the Mansfield visit, because I had no official work there."

SECOND

Trial of Jett and White Begins Next Monday—The Prisoners Now at Cynthiana.

Cynthiana, Ky., July 23.—Sheriff Leech and Deputy Rees arrived here this morning from Lexington with Curt Jett and Tom White the alleged Breathitt county assassins, and placed them in jail. No soldiers accompanied the sheriff and prisoners and their was no excitement on their arrival here. The second trial of Jett and White for the assassination of J. B. Marcum will be commenced here next Monday.

J. G. Blaine and Wife Part.

Boston, Mass., July 23.—From Brattleboro, Vt., it is reported that James G. Blaine and his bride of less than two years have separated. Mrs. Blaine is going to the summer home of her parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Philip Hichborn, at that place, while he for some time has been at Augusta, Me., where his mother recently died.

Mrs. Blaine was the belle of the naval set at Washington prior to her marriage, which came as a surprise. At that time it was reported that young Blaine had served a year's probation before being accepted as a subaltern by the admiral for his daughter's hand.

Blaine's first wife, who was Marie Nevins and is now the wife of Dr. Bull of New York, was secretly married to him, receiving a divorce later after a brief period of married life, in which a rather acrimonious correspondence between the secretary of state and Father Ducey figured.

Later the young man was involved in numerous escapades, figuring in the public prints prior to his marriage to Miss Hichborn as a captain of volunteers with sporting propensities.

FEDERATION TALK.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 23.—Since the death of Granaw Chief P. M. Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, there is talk of reviving the movement to form a federation of train service labor organization which was started a few years ago, but full through because of the opposition of Arthur. Should this proposed federation materialize the orders of conductors, brakemen, firemen, engineers, switchmen and telegraphers would co-operate with each other whenever one or the other of the federated bodies had a grievance against the employing company. Mr. Arthur always opposed the federation idea claiming that it meant sympathetic strikes and the breaking of contracts by one or more of the allied labor orders in the event a strike should occur.

Long Wharf, Boston, almost as celebrated as Faneuil Hall itself the venerable Cradle of Liberty, has been partly destroyed by fire. The ancient landmarks are vanishing.

STEEL STOCK

Shows a Rally—Urgent Liquidation in the Market Seems to be About Completed.

New York, July 23.—As far as the general stock market is concerned, it seems that the urgent liquidation is about completed.

There are some weak spots left, but the better class of securities show unmistakably the effect of good buying.

In the industrial list—the active features were Anaconda Copper and United States Steel. Both displayed considerable strength closing with equal net gains of about one point.

United States Steel was dealt in to the extent of about 115,000 shares. There appeared to be some liquidation in the early part of the day, but it was well absorbed and when the shorts tried to cover the price of the common was advanced very easily to 24 1/8 from which it reached just before the close to 23 1/8.

One of the most noteworthy features of the day was the purchase of a block of 10,000 shares of steel preferred at 70 7/8.

It is estimated that since January 1 almost 2,000,000 shares of steel common and 3,200,000 of preferred have been dealt in on the stock exchange. The total issue of both stocks is 10,600,000 shares.

OIL IS HIGH

Toledo, July 23.—Oil advanced again this morning two cents on western, 3 cents on eastern. North Lima is now $1.18, South Lima and Indiana $1.13. This is the highest figure quoted for many years.

TRIBUTE TO LEO BY MRS. EDDY.
Concord, N. H., July 23.—Mrs. Mary Baker, founder of Christian Science, penned this tribute to Pope Leo:

The sad, sudden announcement of the decease of Pope Leo XIII touches the hearts and will move the pen of millions. The intellectual, moral and religious energy of this illustrious pontiff have moved the church of Rome for one-quarter of a century. The august ruler of 250,000,000 human beings has now passed through the shadow of death in the great forever. The court of the Vatican mourns him; his relatives shed "unavailing tears"; he is the loved and lost of many millions.

"I sympathize with those who mourn, but rejoice in knowing our dear God comforts such with the blessed assurance that life is not lost; its influence remains in the minds of men, and divine love holds its substance safe in the certainty of immortality. In him was life, and the life was the light of men."

INSURANCE

CARRIED BY JACK FROST MAY GO TO COUNTY

It Is Said That He Had $1,000—parents May Appear Now That Cash Is In Sight.

It is claimed that "Jack Frost" whose right name was Snelling, who died suddenly while at work in the B. & O. shops the other day, carried $1,000 insurance.

Of this sum $500 is B. & O. insurance which under the rules will not go to the estate as Snelling has no family. It is said that the remaining insurance will go to Licking county.

Snelling was deserted by his parents when he was eight years of age and was sent to an orphan's asylum. It is possible now that some money is

The "FORCE" Food Company. BUFFALO, N. Y.

Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

Boston, June 25, 1903.

The "Force" Food Company, Buffalo, N. Y.: "GENTLEMEN—A rumor having reached me that your product, "FORCE," contained injurious ingredients, I took the occasion to analyze it, in the interest of my own family and of some friends who are liberal users of it. It may interest you to know that I found it consisted exclusively of whole wheat, barley and salt, and is absolutely free from any injurious elements whatever. Permit me to express my sincere regret that such a serious and baseless rumor should gain footing with the public. You are free to use this letter in any way that will help to do your product justice. Yours truly, WILBUR L. SCOVILLE.

Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

Boston, June 30, 1903.

To Whom It May Concern: At the invitation of the "FORCE" Food Company, of Buffalo, I have visited their Mills and made a careful examination of the materials from which "FORCE" is prepared, and the processes which convert it into its finished condition. I found that "FORCE" consists exclusively of what my previous analysis indicated, viz.: Whole Wheat and Barley, with a seasoning of Table Salt, flaked, cooked and sterilized by 300 degrees of heat. A feature of the manufacture which impressed me considerably was the fact that the process is entirely mechanical, the food being prepared, cooked and boxed by machinery, without ever coming in contact with the hands or clothing of the mill operatives. I was also gratified to note that an experienced Chemist daily supervised the entire output, and that each day's manufacture was also tested by an expert cook. Signed, WILBUR L. SCOVILLE, Professor of Theory and Practice of Chemistry.

Chemical Laboratory, University of Buffalo.

HERBERT M. HILL, Ph. D., Analytical Chemist and Assayer.

June 26, 1903.

The "Force" Food Company, Buffalo, N. Y.: "GENTLEMEN—In view of the rumors regarding the alleged adulteration of "FORCE," it has been a satisfaction to me to visit your Mills, investigate, and analyze your product. You are free to publish this statement made over my signature, that I found "FORCE" to be absolutely pure, consisting solely of Whole Wheat and Barley, flavored with table salt, and free from any injurious substance whatever. I examined, in detail, the various steps in the manufacture of your product, such as the steam cooking, the flaking and the roasting, as well as the packing, and find all to be remarkably clean and of absolute healthfulness. The final roasting is done at a temperature above 300° F., which, with the steam cooking, completely sterilizes the product, and the entire process, from the first step to the final sealing of the package, is a mechanical one, the product at no time coming in contact with the hands or clothing of the persons handling the machines or packages. Very respectfully, HERBERT M. HILL, Chemist to the City of Buffalo.

See page 148 of "Cereal Breakfast Foods," Bulletin No. 84, of the Maine Experiment Station, a State Institution, which has analyzed "FORCE" with other foods, in the public interests. Copy will be mailed free on request. Refer also to Canadian Government Bulletin 84 on similar subject, pages 6 and 29, for analysis showing that "FORCE" consists solely of the most wholesome and nutritious ingredients. Any inquiries concerning this subject will be cheerfully answered by THE "FORCE" FOOD COMPANY, Buffalo, N. Y.

DEVOTION

TO A PRETTY GIRL COST HIS LIFE

Percy Oxrider Died on His Sweetheart's Arm at Norwalk—Buried At Columbus, O.

Columbus, O., July 23.—Tender devotion to his sweetheart cost young Percy Oxrider, of this city, his life, for it was through his desire to be with her that he exposed himself to a relapse of fever, and died.

The youth lived with his parents, on Wood avenue, here, but had been working in Norwalk for the National Steel Company. While there he met and loved pretty Mabel Little, who lived with her mother, Mrs. William Bearse. Mrs. Bearse conducted the boarding house where Oxrider put up. Some months ago he was seized with typhoid fever and came here for treatment. It was a long struggle that he had with death, but he finally became convalescent. Through his delirium he raved and called for his sweetheart. After the fever had passed he dwelt constantly upon her in his conversations. Before he was strong enough he insisted upon going to Norwalk. There the relapse seized him and he was forced to go to bed again.

Miss Little proved a devoted nurse, but the disease had robbed her lover of his strength, and he died in her arms. His funeral took place here today, and at the grave in Greeland a detail from Company C, of the Fourth Regiment of which he was a member, fired a farewell salute.

OATS CROP

Harvested 78 Days After Seed Was Sown—A Coshocton Farmer Makes A Record.

Coshocton, O., July 23.—Oats, planted and harvested in seventy-eight days is a pretty fair record. G. W. Bender of Clark township, reports that May 1 he sowed a field of oats, and just seventy-eight days later, July 17, harvested it. This is six days less than Mr. Bender's record of last year. Mr. Bender is of an experimental and scientific turn of mind, and on June 10, planted another field of oats, which is now in head and almost ready to harvest. He states his field that is in shock is a heavy yield and that the oat crop looks exceptionally good.

FOUNDATION

FOR NEW CHURCH BEING LAID AT HEBRON

Burglars Pay Visit to D. P. Burch's House—Miscreant Damaged Buggy—New House—Personals.

Hebron, July 23.—Thomas Duffill of Lufay is here this week laying the foundation for the M. E. church. The pastor Rev. James Rogers drives here from his country home every day. Assisting the workmen all he can. Some one remarked that he was "working like a Turk." However, it shows how much he is interested in the building of a beautiful place of worship and is doing all in his power to help lessen expenses. It would not be amiss for some of the brethren to volunteer services. The building when completed will be a beautiful structure and will add much to the appearance of the east side.

During the absence of D. P. Burch and wife from their home Sunday some one unlocked their kitchen door and entered the house. Nothing was taken. It is supposed they were looking for money, and there was none about the house. The secretary had been thoroughly searched and the drawers left open.

Court Notes.

A transcript from the criminal docket of Squire Atcherly in the case of the State of Ohio against David Ciekner, charged with assault and battery on Thomas Wandell, has been filed in the Common Pleas Court.

Ivor Hughes, administrator of P. F. Dinan, has filed his final account.

There appears to be some dissension in the Fourth regiment over the election of Captain Ammel and Colonel Berger to the colonelcy and lieutenant colonelcy of the Fourth. It is stated that the enlisted men wanted some say in the election of the officers, which was denied them. A great many of the enlisted men, it is claimed, wanted White for colonel, and so expressed themselves. The official vote as announced, it is said, does not show the total vote cast.

The orator who carried away his audience is affectionately and humanely requested to bring it back.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly filling to cure with local treatment, produced incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. ## Perils of Ballooning.

Balloon ascents are attended by many dangers, but a novel peril was experienced by an aeronaut in India some time ago. As night came on the aerial traveler found himself nearing a jungle and resolved to descend on a marshy spot at the edge of a lake. As he came down into the rushes, however, a crocodile appeared and made straight for the balloon. The aeronaut by throwing out some sand managed to rise a few feet, but the crocodile rushed round and round the grapple rope, clearly disproving the fallacy that a crocodile cannot turn quickly. It would probably have made short work of the unlucky voyager had not some natives come up just in time.—Golden Penny.

Professor Bell's Powerful Kite. Professor Alexander Graham Bell has lately invented a variation in the form of box kites whereby he obtains a greatly increased flying or lifting power. His kite is a tetrahedron, so that it presents the form of a triangle from whatever side it is viewed. It is then self braced in every direction, and with increase of size its lifting power increases in a greater ratio than the weight. By combining a great number of tetrahedrons he has constructed a large kite, which is able to lift not only a man, but a weight of 200 pounds.

A Luck's Sultan.

Abdul Hamid, sultan of Turkey, has just celebrated his sixtieth birthday. Thirty-four Ottomans have reigned in Turkey, and the longest reign was less than fifty years, Suleyman I. having sat upon the throne from 1520 to 1566. Only one sultan in the nineteenth century, only one in the eighteenth and only one in the seventeenth ruled longer than Abdul, and most of his predecessors have been slain or it in chains before their friends were able to wish them many happy returns of their sixtieth birthday.

A Luck's Sultan.

A great forest tree was felled in the state of Washington recently, and it was decided that a piece of it should be sent to Sweden for exhibition purposes. The men who went to see the tree said they would take eleven feet of the butt, but the railroads told them they could leave it in Washington if they did, for it would be impossible to transport the log on any car. The men finally bought fifteen inches, and the section is nine feet in diameter.

It is quite amusing to note the activity displayed by Mr. Roosevelt's campaign entourage in denying that the Prince of Wales intends to visit this country on invitation of the President. No maiden whose engagement is prematurely or wrongly announced appears so fretted as the President over the rumored visit from England's heir apparent. Perish the thought that he sees in frightful vision the departure of the Irish vote should the Prince of Wales become a recipient of all the toadyism that the tuff-hunters of the capital would show toward a real prince, and one so high in degree that he-even hangs on the very edge of a throne. Ordinarily a tentative intimation that the prince was coming would be met by a cordial invitation from the President to come and stay as long as he pleases. But now there is a hot run for the telegraph office to send broadcast a denial that any card has ever been sent to the royal gentleman. Teddy must be getting badly frightened over the effect of the British toadyism that has been the feature of his administration under the leadership of John Hay.

Much mystery attaches to the supineness of the Government authorities in New York toward arresting George W. Beavers, who was indicted across the river in Brooklyn for complicity in the promotion of sales of automatic cashmere machines to the postoffice department. His attorneys desire a hearing before a commissioner, but the government strategically declines to expose its case. But why Mr. Beavers is not taken into custody under the indictment is the mystery. Perhaps the Brooklyn grand jury made a mistake in indicting him, and that procedure was not on the program of the able investigators who are now dealing with the "hot air" of the earlier period of the department scandal. It may be claimed that other fish are expected to be caught in the net, but that fact cannot explain why an indicted man is not arrested and given the privilege of furnishing bail. Congress will have to find out all about these peculiar movements.

State Treasury Examination.

(Dayton News.)

As a sort of apology for the state auditor and treasurer in preventing an investigation of the condition of the state's finances last winter, when charges were made against the state treasurer, the governor now comes forward with the story that he "secretly" appointed a committee to examine the state treasury recently and the committee found everything just as the governor knew it would find them. This proceeding is, to say the least, strange. When the charges were made in the general assembly the governor did not hasten with an examination, but now that there is even rumor of such charge having been made by some irresponsible politician in an obscure county, the governor tells the story of his stealth in appointing that secret committee and finding things in the auditor's and treasurer's offices exceedingly straight. And yet there is a lurking suspicion that things are so rotten between the auditor and treasurer that Guilbert's election is absolutely necessary to bridge over a scandal in that department of the state government.

This examination should disarm criticism of methods at the treasury and prove an apology for refusing an examination and investigation when some members of the general assembly were on the trail of crookedness last winter. As there was no demand for the alleged examination at this time, as the demand for an investigation was refused when it was made and when there would have been an examination that would examine the governor's strange action is causing people to wonder what ghost is walking in the corridors of the state house now.

Governor Nash, no doubt, thinks that his "timely" examination was a good thing. He dotes upon the "secret" end of it as the better part. And while the governor is thus pleased, Treasurer Cameron, no doubt, thumps Auditor Guilbert under the belt with his thumb and winks over at the old man as a good one, who, as governor knows his business. They were both asleep when the examination was going on, and never woke up when the governor and his committee clambered over them, stole in and counted the money in the treasury. It showed the people that these two worthies were honest, and it will prevent any further noise about their dishonesty, a noise which they seem to hear all the time.

As Mr. Nash did not care to have any one know of the examination until it was over, as he appointed those whom he felt would take but a bird's eye view of the situation, it must be admitted that as a politician the governor of the state is a very smooth individual.

But the public still has lurking suspicions that the smoke about the state house emanates from a defective flue in the treasury.

BRITISH NAVAL MATTERS.

Admiral Sir John Fisher, who replied for the British navy to a toast at a recent Royal academy banquet, said in the course of his speech: "I always think on these occasions of the first time I went to sea on board my first ship, a little sailing two decker, and I saw inscribed in great big gold letters the one word 'Silence.' Underneath was another good motto, 'Deeds, Not Words.' I have put that into every ship I have commanded since. This leads me to another motto which is better still. When I was commander in chief in the Mediterranean I went to inspect a small destroyer, only 260 tons, but with such pride and swagger that she might have been 16,000 tons. The lieutenant in command took me round. She was in beautiful order, and I came aft to the wheel and saw there 'Ut Veniant Omnes.' 'Hello!' I said, 'What the deuce is that?' Saluting me, he said, 'Let 'em all come.' That was not boasting; that was the sense of conscious efficiency, the sense that permeates the whole fleet, and I used to think as the admiral it would be irresistible, provided the admiral was up to the mark."

FREAKS OF CLOCKS.

There is an old saw which declares that "when clocks go crazy, things go awry."

At 2 a. m. on Sept. 27, 1869, the world famous clock in the great cathedral at Strassburg commenced to chime without rhyme or reason. It sounded 1,870 peals, then stopped, and after an interval slowly began to toll as if for a great one dead.

The political atmosphere of Europe at that time was indicative of profound peace. Nothing of danger or disgrace could by any possibility be conceived of as threatening Strassburg or its inhabitants. Yet less than a year afterward the German armies had entered the city with a ring of steel and fire. The German shells were falling thickly in her streets and squares and exploding even within the precincts of the stately cathedral itself. And precisely at 2 a. m. Sept. 27, 1870, General Ullrich signed the capitulation which was to deliver Strassburg into the hands of the invaders.

In the house of lords is a certain historical timepiece which is said to invariably suffer from temporary aberration whenever a member of the royal family of Britain passes away. The peculiarity was first noticed when William IV. died. Very early in the morning the clock began to emit a series of peculiar gurgling noises, as though gasping for breath, went suddenly slow and finally stopped altogether. All efforts to start it failed, and on the evening of the day of the funeral it restarted of its own accord, nor did it give any further trouble whatever for many years afterward.

It has over and over again been noticed that clocks, especially those situated in the towers of high buildings having unusually deep foundations, are liable to go wrong in sympathy with seismic disturbances happening in districts sometimes very far away.

On Nov. 1, 1755, for instance, fully half the timepieces in Edinburgh were affected. Many stopped altogether. Others went slow or fast or started striking wrongly. In this the superstitious saw some calamity impending, and it was not until news arrived of the great Lisbon earthquake that the alarm was allayed. It was then discovered, by comparing times and dates, that the first shock must have traveled from Fez in Morocco to Cape Wrath in less than eight seconds.

A curious coincidence was then recalled. On the evening of April 7, exactly five years previously, several thousands of persons, particularly those of rank and fortune, had camped out in Hyde park and had thus passed the hours from dusk till daylight.

This was to avoid an earthquake shock which had been predicted for

INVADING THE THAMES.

--AMERICAN AGGRESSION

Nothing has so startled the English public of late as the "invasion," as they call it, of American capital and enterprise, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. These have certainly taken hold of English business with surprisingly good results. The London underground railways—the "tubes"—and the English trolley system bear evidence of this, and now the invaders are taking charge of the Thames itself, which has hitherto been the very haunt and fastness of precedent and ancient custom. Here red tape and British conservatism have flourished to the detriment of the port.

Take the simple instance of the rights of the watermen. They transport freight up and down the forty miles of river between Gravesend and London. Legions of their barges, stored by one oar, float up and down with the tides. They move slowly, they obstruct navigation, yet no one dares suggest that the barges be towed to hasten matters. The waterman's rights date back into the misty ages of fable and are upheld by royal grants innumerable. Therefore wherever Thames water flows the waterman's boat may go without price. The sight of an enormous modern dock being opened to receive a one oared canal boat free of charge while modern liners pay handsomely for the same privilege is a daily scene which illustrates one of their prescriptive rights. No cargo may be moved from dock to wharf or from point to point along the river without calling in a waterman and paying him well. He has other curious medieval privileges which are innumerable. Yet you cannot abolish the waterman or make him tow his barge.

Then there is the Thames conservancy, which has charge of all matters pertaining to the river. The conservancy of this conservancy is another remarkable thing. All matters under their charge must remain as they have been for the last thousand years.

There is a bar—they call it the Leigh Middle—at the mouth of the river. This obstructs the liners at low tide. It is just a common mud bank that would be ripped out of an American port in two weeks, but the Thames conservancy will not dredge this bar. It has always been there, they say, and it would cost money. Why trouble them with such matters? The only way to get at the conservative conservancy would be by act of parliament, and it would be as hard to abolish them as it would be a waterman.

Then over all this are the Elder Brethren of Trinity House. This institution dates back to the reign of King Alfred, and some of the members go back nearly as far. Most of them are over seventy, and some are in the nineties. These take charge of everything in the early morning of the 8th by an alleged "madman." The threatened quake, however, failed to materialize, and the scared ones got heartily laughed at for their pains. Nevertheless, it was noted at the time that several of the public and private clocks of the metropolis stopped at precisely the same moment on the morning in question, and this fact at once took on a new and sinister significance.

"Was it possible," people began to ask, "that the so-called 'madman' was not so very 'mad' after all and that London had providentially escaped what might possibly have been a hideous and unparalleled catastrophe?"

The so-called "madness" of Mechlin's clock constitutes one of the most mysterious incidents of the Napoleonic wars. It happened in 1806. Two years previously the Corsican usurper had razed a portion of the city to the ground, and the place had also suffered severely in other ways. But the magnificent cathedral had been spared, and then, as now, its massive tower rising four square to a height of more than 300 feet and bearing four dials, each forty-eight feet in diameter, was one of the most striking landmarks for miles and miles around.

Inside the tower was the gigantic clock, the biggest in the world. It had boomed the hours for longer than the oldest burgher could remember and had never gone wrong. When, therefore, in the early dawn of one summer day the great bell began clanging furiously small wonder that not only the city, but the whole countryside, was roused. Mechlin itself was like a disturbed half, men rushing from their houses half dressed, but all armed, while from every town and village within a radius of twenty miles angry peasants poured cityward.

It was a false alarm, however, after all. No assault followed. No column of dust on the horizon heralded the advance of the enemy, although anxious eyes watched all day. But when to ward evening one more curious than his fellows bethought him to examine the interior of the clock tower in order to discover if possible the reason for the clock's strange behavior a grievous sight met his view.

Entangled in the massive works of the huge timepiece, torn, gashed, every bone broken, was the body of a French officer. He had evidently climbed into the tower unobserved and had been caught by the machinery while engaged in tampering with it. What his object was in so doing none ever knew. That it was something sinister there could be no doubt. Probably he had intended to so arrange the interior mechanism of the clock as to cause it to sound a signal later in the day. At all events, whatever his plan, it miscarried. And he himself fell a victim to his own temerity and want of knowledge.

body and everything voluntarily and with that conservatism which is the mark of advanced age, veto all innovations. "Trinity House," says the London Mail, "is an indefensible anomaly, a trusted instance of voluntary management that no other maritime nation would tolerate."

Into this muddle of mud and precedent, then, has come the American invasion. The American shipping combine, representing seven lines, seven score great liners and an enormous tonnage, is now doing business in the American way in London, and the effect is marked. Under the spur of their enterprise the whole system of management of docks and waterways is under serious discussion and for the first time in centuries is about to undergo definite revision.

There are plans for the making of the river below London bridge, forty miles of it, into a series of locks, on which the greatest ships could float at all times. The various authorities of the port are to be combined into one, so that the management of the port may be in the hands of the shipping merchants who are directly interested. The dock companies are to be "expropriated" and combined, the wharf and lighter interests to be included, and one board will manage the whole and the river as well.

If carried out this will make London a shipping port such as the world has not yet seen, and, as the London Times puts it in pithy comment, "who who pay the piper will be able to call the tune." A bill to this effect has actually been introduced into parliament by Gerald Balfour. Whether it goes through or not is a question, but the fact that so much has been done is evidence that the American invasion of the Thames is stirring up the placid waters of precedent, and the result cannot fail to be good. With the dock companies allied instead of jealously competing, with wharfs and lighters under the same management and that of the men who are financially interested in the welfare of the port, the river should surely begin to regain its falling prestige.

The beauty of all this is that the Englishmen themselves are becoming inspired with this spirit and are pushing the reforms that are to help the great port in its new advancement. The American spirit has invaded not only the Thames, but the English merchants and shipowners themselves.

FAITHFUL SERVANTS

(Original.)
"Anything for George Granger?" The question was asked of a postman trudging a road in the Cumberland mountains. The questioner was a quick moving, sharp eyed man, who spoke in a tone of authority. The postman glanced through a package of letters he took from his bag, while the other looked over his shoulder.

"There it is!" suddenly exclaimed the stranger, and, making a dash, knocked the batch out of the postman's hand, scattering it on the ground. Then, apologizing profusely, he helped the postman to pick up the letters.

The postman continued his route and later came upon a young woman standing in the road, waiting for him.

"Nothin' today, Mag," he said pleasantly.

"Nothin' fo' Bob, shore?" Alex McCurdy, the postman, looked over his letters, but found none for Bob Campbell.

"Cur'us," he muttered. "Seems to me I remember startin' with one. I wonder if that feller below"—He paused.

"What feller?"

"Oh, I met a man that was terrible anxious for his letter and he knocked the lot on the ground. He was mighty willin' to help me pick 'em up."

"Short, thick man, black, stubby beard?"

"Well, yes."

"Lord save us, it's him!"

"Who?"

"Stivers, a revenue man. They'll catch Tom with the goods on him. They've been watchin' him fo' weeks, and this feller who's got the letter has been doin' everything he could to find out whar the still is. Tom wrote Bob that he'd deliver four bar's o' whisky in the woods just above Scott's mill to-night at 10 o'clock. Bob was to let Tom know he'd got the word and the letter 'd be here by you on this trip."

The girl seemed crushed, and the postman saw how he had been tricked. That he was in the United States service did not for a moment outweigh his mountaineer citizenship and his sympathy with the moonshiners. Besides, Mag Campbell, the sister of the men in danger, was his sweetheart—at least he wanted her to be his sweetheart.

"Here, take keer of this, Mag," he said, handing her his letter bag. "I'm goin' to try to head him off."

"Ef you do I'll!"

McCurdy heard the words and knew what they meant, but didn't stop to listen to their finishing. It was 5 o'clock and he had miles to go to reach the rendezvous before the delivery of the goods, which, for the lack of a revenue stamp, would land the Campbell brothers in jail. He knew every road, by path-trail in that region—and by taking the shortest cuts was able to reach a point not far from the rendezvous a few minutes before 10 o'clock. As he was hurrying on he heard a horse's hoofs and the rattle of a wagon behind him. Darting behind a tree beside the road he waited for the corner to pass. A man was driving, and as he came up, a full moon shining in his face, McCurdy recognized him as the person who had taken the letter. In an instant he was standing in the road confronting the man with a cocked revolver.

"I've no money," said Stivers.

"It isn't money I want. Give me the letter you took."

"Hold on! I'll explain that. I'm a revenue officer, and you're a postman. We're both in the United States service. I'm going now to join my posse, and in five minutes we'll nab two of the slickest moonshiners in Tennessee."

"You'll nab no moonshiners tonight. And I'll trouble you for the letter."

Stivers was astonished. He could not understand why a man in another branch of the service would prevent him from accomplishing his object.

"This will cost you your position," he said.

"If it does it will be for lettin' you take the letter."

Stivers was a resolute man and not to be balked without an effort. Thinking that McCurdy would not resist the force of arms, he drew his revolver. A ball whistled by his head. He fired, and his shot was returned. Both men were wounded. Stivers fell from his seat into the road. McCurdy crawled up to him, put his hand into his pocket and took out the letter. After examining the address in the moonlight and seeing that it was what he wanted he faint.

All this occurred within sound of the rendezvous and at the moment the Campbell brothers met to pass the whisky. Hearing the shots, they went to the spot where they were fired and found Stivers and McCurdy, the latter unconscious.

An hour later the brothers deposited the wounded Stivers where he lodged and in the morning drove up to their own cabin with McCurdy. When Mag saw them coming with the man who had saved them lying at length in the wagon, she climbed in and folded him in her arms.

A year later a large bundle of papers relating to the case were pigeonholed in the interior department at Washington and a similar bundle in the post office department. An order was issued from each, the one commanding Benjamin Stivers, the other Alexander McCurdy for the faithful service with which they had served the government in their respective departments.

Stivers was promoted and placed in another field. McCurdy was ultimately made postmaster, and the Campbell brothers dropped moonshining and took up legitimate business. But the greatest of all the rewards—so McCurdy considered it—was his, in the love of Mag Campbell.

TALKING IT OVER

The Southern Educational Conference Interesting Examples.

A shoemaker in a little New England valley displays a sign on the top of his shop bearing the following inviting language: "Walk In and Talk It Over." It is an announcement that has more of timeliness and general application than may have originally occurred to the display of the sign. The "get together" and "talk it over" method is having a remarkable vogue nowadays. It was conspicuously present in the world's congress of religions at the Chicago Columbian exposition. It is used by those interested in social progress; it is at the basis of the various schemes for conciliation between capital and labor; it is the backbone of the international arbitration movement. Mr. Carnegie's proposed Palace of Peace at The Hague being merely a commodious and agreeable place where the nations of the world may "walk in and talk it over" in the most convenient and dignified manner, in this case a highly civilized and truly Christian substitute for the old fashioned, romantic, corpse decorated battle field, where the nations instead walked in and fought it over.

The "talk it over" in place of the "fight it over" method implies a higher state not merely of manners and morals, but also of human intelligence, as illustrated by the story told the other day in the south of a colored servant who, referring to the civil war, remarked that, as the white folks hadn't intelligence enough to settle the question peaceably, they had to go and fight it out.

One of the most interesting modern examples of the talking over method is the series of annual conferences on education in the south, with which the name of Mr. Robert C. Ogden is prominent. The sixth was held recently in Richmond, the capital of Virginia and the former capital of the southern confederacy. The valuable and instructive "talking over" on this occasion between representatives of various parts of the north and of the south was not only upon the public platform, but in social intercourse.—Century.

Badly Injures Eight Workmen at Black Hand.

Fifty Sticks of Dynamite Discharged in Interurban Tunnel.

Two Men Had Hands Blown Off—Others Seriously Injured—Dire Threats Made by Foreigners and Trouble Was Narrowly Averted.

Eight Hungarians were injured, six seriously by an explosion of dynamite in the tunnel now being constructed through Red Rock, near Black Hand, by the F. H. Blodgett company for the Newark and Zanesville interurban. The accident happened about 3:30 Wednesday afternoon and as the maimed and bleeding laborers lay about on the ground screaming with pain and groaning in physical anguish, the uninjured about the scene were nearly panic stricken, thinking that their fellows were killed by the accident.

The discipline of the bosses over the foreigners asserted itself for the time being, and the work of extracting the injured and caring for them was begun immediately.

Dr. Postal of Black Hand, was soon on the scene and Dr. J. P. H. Stedem and Dr. Carl Evans of Newark were summoned. The Newark physicians were in attendance upon the Alexandria-Idleville ball game, and were called out of the stand immediately after the first inning, or about 3:45.

They got into rigs and drove to the scene of the accident as fast as swift horses would carry them arriving there about 5:30. From that time until 10:30 the three physicians were busy attending to the injured, workmen. Dr. Postle had already dressed a number of the injuries, but the three doctors worked like beavers for five hours.

The accident happened about 70 feet from the Eastern approach to the tunnel which is 300 feet long and from what can be learned was due to the carelessness of the foreman. A charge of dynamite had been set and was in readiness to explode. Another charge close to the first one was being "tamped" home when it exploded. The explosion set off the first charge which went off with terrible results, huge fragments of rocks and showers of sand being driven in every direction, the men at work about the scene having no warning and no chance to get to a place of safety.

The terrific force of the explosion filled the tunnel with a cloud of dust and smoke, and many were thrown flat on the ground who were not injured. When the air had cleared to some extent a terrible sight was witnessed. Eight men were lying on the ground, blinded, bleeding and broken, some muttering incoherent prayers, others imprecations all in their mother tongue, and unintelligible to the Americans who were the first to recover from the panic of the moment, and began the work of rescue.

The injured were taken to the camp near by and the physicians mentioned before began their labors as soon as possible of binding the wounds of the unfortunate foreigners.

The two men who were the most seriously injured were those nearest the charge one of them using the tamping iron.

The names of the injured could not be learned and would be unintelligible if printed, as they were all Austrians, who can speak hardly a word of English.

One man had his thumb and little finger blown off the right hand, a second had the entire left hand blown off, except the thumb, and the wrist of this arm is also badly fractured. A third man was hurled against the side of the tunnel and sustained serious internal injuries which may result fatally.

A fourth had a huge fragment of rock fall on his foot and badly crushed it, and was also terribly bruised. A fifth had a gaping wound in the scalp, while a sixth had a broken arm and badly lacerated face.

The seventh and eighth were not seriously, but very painfully bruised. All the injured men were badly burned about the face, head and neck and the hard, flinty, sand was driven deep into their flesh causing terrible suffering.

The scene at the camp while the physicians were dressing the wounds of the injured, passed description. Those who were not injured blended their unintelligible jargon with the shrieks and groans of the injured.

The situation was fast becoming desperate as the men came to believe that the accident was caused by the foreman's carelessness. The loud lamentations became mutterings of rage and finally took the form of open threats against the life of the foreman. "Kill boss John," was whispered and soon this sanguinary, vengeful cry was on the lips of nearly every man who was in the tunnel at the time of the explosion. The men became more and more desperate and it was only by the exercise of the most stringent discipline and diplomatic judgment that the deplorable affair was not attended by the life of the man who was justly or unjustly held responsible for its happening.

It was quickly determined that the wisest and safest plan was to get the injured men away from the camp as soon as possible, and as there was no room in the Newark hospital arrangements were made to take the men to a Columbus hospital which was done Thursday.

This is the first accident that has occurred on the new interurban between Zanesville and Newark, with results at all serious, as the F. H. Blodgett company are experienced contractors of this line of work, and use every precaution for the safety of the men in their employ.

The unfortunate fellows were in charge of Dr. Postle and were lying on cots in the baggage car. They presented a pitiful sight, their faces being frightfully disfigured, one having nearly the entire nose blown away.

They were conscious and viewed the reporter who talked with Postle with apparent interest.

One of the men, Dr. Postle said, would die, the one who had a thumb and little finger blown away.

While in the car at Newark the fellow called Dr. Postle to his side and said in very broken English:

"Three fingers, Doc. I got; tell her; no more cut; hand all right now; will work again."

Dr. Postle said this was the first time he had shown any sign of reviving. By "her" he probably meant his wife or sweetheart, but the poor fellow was assured that all the cutting necessary had been done.

The men were taken to St. Anthony's hospital, Columbus.

COSTELLO

WAS CASTING SOUVENIRS NOT COINS.

Licking County Prisoner Placed in Solitary Confinement at Pen—Violated His Parole.

Columbus, O., July 23.—Warden Hershey and Deputy Wells take no stock in the story that Thomas Costello, the Licking county prisoner, who was recently returned from Cincinnati after having violated his parole, was making counterfeit 25-cent pieces. He had cast a piece of metal that was smooth on one side and had figures on the other that resembled the head on a twenty-five cent piece. Costello insisted that he was trying to make a souvenir for sale and intended to submit it to the warden for approval.

He made no attempt to conceal what he was doing. The matter has not been closed, but is left open for any further investigation that may be necessary.

Costello's moulds were secured and he was placed in solitary confinement. The investigation made by the prison court Wednesday convinced the penitentiary officials that he was only making souvenir trinkets out of lead.

Costello has had a varied career. Of a good family of Cincinnati, he was convicted in Newark and sentenced to serve four years for forgery. After serving two years he was paroled and returned to Cincinnati. Within six weeks he forged a half dozen checks and was sent back to the penitentiary. His family made good some of his forged papers, but he was finally reported to the authorities.

During his six weeks' outing from the penitentiary he married a Cincinnati girl in Covington, promising her to reform. When he was returned it was discovered that he was a paroled prisoner from the Michigan penitentiary, and after he finishes his Ohio sentence he must return to Michigan and serve two remaining years there.

He is a man of no little resource, and during his imprisonment has invented a practical smoke-consuming stove that is said to be valuable.

Every Claim Is Backed by Local Testimony.

If the reader wants stronger proof than the following statement and experience of a resident of Newark, what can it be

T. Henderson, No. 489 Baltimore street, says:

"I can only say that after giving Doan's Kidney Pills a trial, they showed themselves to be all that was claimed for them. I had a good deal of pain over my kidneys. If I contracted a cold, no matter how slight, it always affected them first, and as the result, my back grew worse, being so painful sometimes that it was all I could do to straighten up. The urine was of a bad odor and color—evidence that the kidneys were not altogether right. After I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills at Crayton's drug store, all this trouble was corrected. The kidneys passed away the impurities and my back was strong and free from pain."

D. A. HAYES

RECEIVES UNANIMOUS VOTE OF DELEGATES

Former Newark Man Re-elected President of Glass Bottle Blowers International Association.

Cincinnati, O., July 23.—The twenty-fourth annual convention of the Glass Bottle Blowers' International Association came to an end yesterday, after a ten day's session.

A hot contest between Western, Southern and Eastern cities developed for the honor of the next annual meeting, in which Atlantic City, Milwaukee, Terre Haute, Toronto, Canada; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Tallapoosa, Ga.; Buffalo, N. Y., and St. Louis were entered. The contest finally narrowed down to St. Louis and Buffalo and after a the vote the latter was selected through a combination of the Eastern delegates.

The following international officers were elected and installed for the ensuing year:

President, D. A. Hayes of Philadelphia, formerly of Newark, O.

Vice President, Harry Mackinaw of Alton, Ill.

Secretary, William Launer, of Philadelphia.

Treasurer, Conrad Auth of Pittsburg, International Executive Board, Harry Mackinaw, Alton, Ill., Chairman and M. J. Gill of St. Louis; Edgar A. Agard of Fairbury, Ill.; Thomas McDowell of Pittsburg, J. E. Dyer of Fairmount, Ind.; John Fedy of Reading, O.; Carlton Parks of Woodbury, N. J., and Peter Bunn of Baltimore, Md.

Trustees, James Leadner, Martin Lohr and James Ueberger, all of Philadelphia.

Harry Mackinaw, M. J. Gill, Carlton Parks and John Kody are the new members of the board, the latter being the only representative.

Treasurer Conrad Auth was given the unusual honor of being re-elected for the twenty-fourth time, and, with President Hayes, received the unanimous vote of the delegates.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

The tub hat is one of the season's novelties. It is made of all over embroidery, the work English designs being preferred.

For cool summer evenings there are pretty knitted shirts, shaped to the shoulders, and they are seen in all light and pastel shades.

The corset skirt has come to supplement the corset coat. It has no less than seventeen zones, is fitted snugly over the hips and apples at the bottom. Tartan plaid lines resembling Irish poplin are the latest addition to the wash goods counters. They are very beautiful, but not particularly cool looking.

THE RAILWAYS

WHAT THE RAILWAY WORLD SAYS ABOUT SCALPING

B. & O. Train Kills a Man—Jack Frost Once a Pen. Guard—Local Railroad Affairs.

The war against ticket scalping is being vigorously pushed in St. Louis. Injunctions have been obtained with counter-injunctions which will allow them to continue in business until October.

It is to be hoped and expected that the final decision will put a stop to their operations. The public are gradually being educated. It is often difficult to persuade a man that when he signs another man's name on a railroad ticket, or re-sells a ticket which he purchased under a non-transferable contract, he is guilty of a fraud upon the railway. The conscience of the traveling public is singularly elastic upon such matters, and anti-scalping arguments based upon moral grounds unfortunately do not have the weight which might be desired. When, however, the public are made to see that if scalping were abolished the railroads would be free to develop passenger business by offering low rates for special occasions, and that the average passenger will travel cheaper than he does at present, it will not be difficult to secure the needed legislation in every state where the evil thrives.

Commercial organizations in many large cities have comprehended this fact and are vigorous in their opposition to a business which injures the merchant even more than it does the railroads. Unlike many other laws, which depend for the enforcement upon the voluntary action of the authorities, the railroad companies are always vigilant to force prosecutions. All that is needed in this matter is to educate public sentiment to the point of forcing legislation. Once such a law is passed, the self interest of the railroads will see that it is carried out.—Railway World.

Once a Pen. Guard.
John Snelling, better known as Jack Frost, who died suddenly at the B. & O. shops was once a guard at the Ohio penitentiary, says the Columbus Dispatch. While in Columbus he is said to have boarded on East Gay street, and at one time was pronounced dead while in a fit but after several hours he returned to consciousness. He was 45 years old.

Killed by Train.
Thomas Davis, aged 78, residing at Eldon, O., while crossing the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at that place yesterday was struck by passenger train No. 14 and instantly killed.

THEATRICAL DOINGS

Irene Vanbrugh Exceeds in London Her American Success.

Miss Irene Vanbrugh, the leading lady of "The Admirable Crichton" company at the Duke of York theater, London, has scored even a greater hit than she did in this country three years ago when she appeared with John Hare in "The Gay Lord Quex." As Sophy Fullgamer, the maidservant, in the Pinero play, in which Hare was a decided failure, she won widespread praise from American playgoers and critics, and in "The Admirable Crichton," written by J. M. Barrie, has now achieved fame which makes her future secure.

"The Admirable Crichton" will be produced in America next fall, opening in New York in the Lyceum theater. Charles Frohman, owner of the play, will produce it. William Gillette will be the leading man, taking the part giving title to the play, and Miss Vanbrugh, it was recently reported, would possibly come over to portray the role in which she has scored heavily in London. However, later news is to the effect that Miss Sibyl Carlisle has been signed by Mr. Frohman to fill Miss Vanbrugh's place.

An estimate of Miss Vanbrugh's ability may be obtained from the following extract from a review of "The Gay Lord Quex" written by a prominent New York critic when Pinero's distasteful play was appearing in New York at the Criterion theater:

"Such acting as is being done by Miss Vanbrugh is a revelation to New Yorkers. Nothing so clever, so dainty, so altogether satisfactory has been seen here in years. An excellent reputation had preceded Miss Vanbrugh to these shores, and she was expected to be a good foil to the undisputedly talented Mr. Hare. But that she was to dominate and control this latest Pinero play by sheer force of her art was certainly not anticipated. Miss Vanbrugh plays a difficult part (and when I say difficult I use the word advisedly) as few women, if any, of our own stage could play it. She is made of 'The Gay Lord Quex' something to see and to talk about. Without her John Hare and Arthur Pinero would look small and paltry indeed, despite the fact that Hare is a genius and the third act of Mr. Pinero's play a splendid achievement of dramatic construction. 'But you can't get away from this one truth: Miss Vanbrugh is the cent-

tral figure on the stage of the Criterion and will continue such until 'The Gay Lord Quex' leaves."

Miss Viola Allen has decided that the charge of having desecrated a play of Shakespeare shall not be brought against her. It is her purpose to present "Twelfth Night" without taking liberties with text beyond compressing the action into the usual number of scenes and acts. This comedy is fortunately free from objectionable words or scenes. Indeed the play could be given before a modern audience without the elimination of a single line, a condition which does not exist regarding some of the other plays by Shakespeare.

Woman's Nature
Mother's Friend, by its penetrating and soothing properties, allays nausea, nervousness, and all unpleasant feelings, and so prepares the system for the ordeal that she passes through the event safely and with but little suffering, as numbers have testified and said, "it is worth its weight in gold." $1.00 per bottle of druggists. THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.

spare is presented during Shakespeare's time "Twelfth Night" was given in eighteen scenes, but with the massive settings now in vogue this would be impractical. The consequence is that the play has usually been compressed into ten scenes, and this without the elimination of much matter. The play has been given line for line, and this is Miss Allen's purpose.

Arrangements have been made by Miss Bertha Gulland's manager to have Paul Kester dramatize Charles Major's latest novel, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall." This is the first book written by Mr. Major since he penned "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Mr. Kester, who is the author of "Mlle. Mars," having just finished and produced that play for Mrs. Langtry, has gone to his home in Virginia, where he is now at work on the manuscript of "Dorothy Vernon."

Williams Lewers has been engaged for the part of Sir John Manners. Mr. Lewers is at present a member of Miss Julia Marlowe's company and was to have appeared next season with Mrs. Langtry as her leading man. She has agreed to release him at the request of both the author and the dramatist, who are anxious to have Mr. Lewers play this part. Frank Losee is to be seen as Sir George Vernon, Dorothy's father.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Maud Adams is camping out in Egypt.
Ezra Kendall will be starred in a new play by Herbert Hall Winslow.
Grace George has acquired the lease of a cottage near Paris, where she will spend her summers hereafter.

Two churches in Boston have sent invitations to Dorothy Rae of "Peggy From Paris" to sing in choirs.

During the summer interval Mrs. Fiske will devote much time to the study of Lady Macbeth, in which character she will be seen a year from next autumn.

E. F. Boddington and Harriet Ford are at work on a dramatization of Mary Johnston's novel "Audrey." The play will not be presented until the holidays.

"Are You a Mason?" "Lady Huntworth's Experience," "The Second In Command," "When We Were Twenty-one," "The Liars" and "The Magistrate" were recently acted in Shanghai.

William Herbert, a member of Miss Henrietta Crossman's company in the New York run of "As You Like It," has been re-engaged for the part of Adam for her revival of the Shakespearean comedy next fall.

The Point of View.
Two window washers were at work on the ledges of the sixteenth story windows of a downtown office building about ten feet from each other. As they hung to their straps and washed and polished the glass they could look into the offices, where a number of clerks were bending over ledgers and books.

For a half hour they worked and watched the clerks, who did not move from their confined position over their books. Finally one big window washer leaned back as far as his strap would permit and called to his fellow:

"No. 146, you are discharged from this prison and may go where you like. I hope you'll live an honest life and not have to come back here again."

As the warden spoke the prisoner stared at him as though his mind were upon other matters, then, without a reply, hastened out into the world.

Several years before this Henry Tracy was a young business man of such marked ability that when Manning Brightman, an intimate friend, though fifteen years his senior, died it was found that Tracy had been named sole executor of his estate and guardian of the only heir, Edith Brightman, seventeen years old. One day Abel Barnicourt, who had once been Brightman's attorney, produced papers transferring the whole estate to Sarah Parton, who claimed to be the second wife of the deceased. These papers disappeared, and there was such strong evidence that Tracy had stolen them that his incarceration followed. While he was in prison the estate remained in litigation, and Edith Brightman, being deprived of her income, was forced to earn her own living.

On the evening of his discharge he stood on a street corner waiting for the clocks to strike 10. At the first stroke a man crossed the street and joined him.

"The shovels?" asked Tracy.
"On the place."

"All right. You go ahead, and I'll follow. We don't want to be seen together."

"Tracy followed the man out of town to a deserted house standing beside the road, and the two entered the grounds. A pick and a shovel were found under a porch, and Tracy, leading the way to a large tree in a corner of the lot, began to dig. Coming to a small sheet iron box, they removed it and returned with it to the city.

"We'll go to your room, Brown," said Tracy. "You've got the documents there, I believe."

"Yes."
A few minutes later Brown scratched a match in his room, lit the gas, locked the door, pulled down the shades, and the two opened the iron box, taking out a bundle of papers. Brown meanwhile unlocked a desk and brought forth an envelope containing documents. Tracy seized them eagerly and scanned them one after another till he came to one at which he uttered a cry of joy.

"This is the key to the situation!" he exclaimed. "Without this the others are worthless. I'll take care of this myself. You look out for the others. Meet me in the morning at the courthouse, and we will swear out the warrant."

It was 11 o'clock at night when Tracy left the detective and walked rapidly to a house where there was but one light burning. He rang the bell and when a servant came asked for Miss Brightman.

"Gone to bed."
"Never mind that. I must see her tonight."

"Who shall I tell her wishes to see her?"

"Never mind that either. She'll approve of your calling her up."
When Edith Brightman entered the room and saw her guardian, the ex-convict, she caught at the door knob. His imprisonment and the mystery attending it, together with the loss of her property, had not only been a puzzle but a horror to her. When it occurred she was still half a child. Now she was a woman.

"Edith," said Tracy, "your estate is saved to you."

She stared at him wondering as he proceeded:
"When your father asked me to be his executor he told me of the woman who claimed to be his wife, and that he also suspected Barnicourt. 'When I die,' he said, 'there'll be some rascality practiced on my little girl. Promise me you will see that she is not robbed.' 'I promise on my honor and my life,' I replied.

"When the blow fell I knew the papers were fraudulent, but could not prove it. The court was about to turn over the estate to this woman, who would at once turn it into cash and leave the country. I deliberately stole their papers and buried them in my yard. While serving my term I employed a detective, who has only recently unraveled the case. Here is a contract between Abel Barnicourt and Sarah Parton, wherein she agrees to deliver the estate with him in case he secures it for her, and below her confession that she was never married to your father, and the documents are all forged, the signatures being copied from letters of your father which had fallen into her possession. This confession Barnicourt was to hold over him in case she refused to divide with him after the estate was acquired."

While Tracy was giving his ward this brief summary of a case which could only be written in volumes her face wore the expression not of one delighted at hearing how she had regained her property, but an engrossing pity mingled with wonder, admiration, gratitude for one who had suffered disgrace and imprisonment that it might pass to its legitimate owner.

"And you did this to fulfill a promise?"

"No. I loved the little girl for whom I did it."

It was a long while before Edith Brightman, reversing the conventional order of matrimonial occurrences, could persuade Henry Tracy to become her husband. Despite the truth to the world he was known as an ex-convict and his career was ruined. Then he fell ill, and it was in one of his weaker physical moods that his consent was obtained. The pair went abroad and have never returned to America.

Cleared Away and Entirely Cured in 21 Days.

TESTIMONY FROM A LEADING DRUGGIST

The following testimony speaks for itself. It is a matter of humanity to tell everybody with a skin disease about this medication.

Astonishingly quick and complete cures of all varieties of skin diseases by D. D. D. have been fully verified in nine cases out of every ten that have come under my observation. In every case it did its work in 3 to 6 weeks time. It is to my knowledge the most wonderful curative agent in all Materia Medica for diseases of the skin. Its results are marvelous; some cases of years' standing were cleared away in a few days almost before my eyes.

I give this public acknowledgement in response to a request from the D. D. D. Company as to my honest opinion of this medication. I have no hesitancy in expressing myself positively concerning it, as its efficacy has been proven to me beyond the possibility of doubt.

F. D. HALL, Newark, Ohio.

D. D. D. is now used by every family physician who has investigated it. It is used by the greatest skin specialists in the country. It is used in the Cook County Hospital, Chicago. It will clear away any parasitic break in the skin in from 3 to 60 days time. It is a medical triumph. In Eczema, Salt Rheum, Barber's Itch, Itching Piles and all skin affections, in the invariable success this local treatment proves it is a skin parasitic that causes the trouble and that it is not the blood that is to blame.

D. D. D. clears it all away—absolutely and quickly, too.
The above druggist will fill mail orders on receipt of price—$1.00 a bottle. Compounded for druggists everywhere by the D. D. D. Company, 70 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois.

ALEXANDRIA

LOST THE GAME TO IDLEWILDE

TEAM WEDNESDAY

Pataskala Scotty Pitched a Fine Game
For the Home Team—A One Sided Contest.

The Alexandria baseball team came to Newark Wednesday puffed up with an intense realization of their importance and ball playing ability. They are a fairly good set of ball players, and have been pampered and hero worshipped by the populace of the village of Alexandria until they verily believed they were invincible. It was their especial pleasure during the early afternoon to tell what they would do to the Idlewilde team, and in the early afternoon before the game, the players were proud about like a puffed pigeon, before a crowd of fair rosters from the St. Albans village, who gazed with deep awe and respect at each of the diamond heroes.

About 1 o'clock about thirty of Alexandria's fairest women sought admission to the grandstand, and each wore the team's colors and patiently awaited the calling of the game, prophesying the annihilation of Manager Driscoll's team of players.

Louis Swinehart, born lucky, met one supporter of the village team who offered to bet $5 that Idlewilde would not score six runs. The gate keeper sketched around to borrow five and returned to the rural sport and put up the money with an air of a man taking a desperate chance against big odds. Realizing that the fellow was evidently suffering from incipient paresis, Swinehart put the fellow under cover. This is the only mean thing that "Swiney" has ever been guilty of, as none of his friends had any chance of getting at the fellow.

The game itself was a farce. At no time did the Alexandria team have a chance. "Pataskala Scotty" was in the box for the home team and made "monkeys" of the village players, striking out the first six batters in the opening two innings. In the meantime Idlewilde scored six runs and up till the eighth added four runs more giving them a lead of 10 runs. Scotty was then instructed to ease up and save his arm, which he did, and the visitors scored twice. The game was like a horse race in which Irish Lad was pitted against a plough horse, but the crowd thoroughly enjoyed the afternoon's sport.

Idlewilde made 15 hits off Manager Anderson's crack twirler, Harrison, Tommy Francis lining out a timely three bagger, the first ever made on the grounds. It was a hard hit, rolling clear to the fence in right center.

Wilson Heisey played in right field for the home team, but had nothing to do, but made two hits.

The news of the team's defeat was telegraphed. Charley Courtier, who could not get in to see the game. "Court" is a stock holder in the Alexandria team, and the news was of such a nature that his family are fearful that he will not come home this week.

SPORTING WORLD.

Now that the national and international tennis championship season is close at hand the sharps are watching the performances of the leaders in order to size up their chances in the coming contests.

The rivalry among the top notchers this year is warm in the extreme, and the game itself was a farce. At no time did the Alexandria team have a chance. A Woman's Winning Method

[Original.]

The term "buccaneer" is associated in most people's minds with that of "pirate." The buccaneers were at first privateers authorized to prey on Spanish commerce, but afterward degenerated into sea robbers. On one of these buccaneer ships more than a century ago among the crew was a woman dressed in man's clothes. She had worn this attire for several years as a soldier and had taken part in a number of battles. When peace came she concluded to try the sea, and, shipping for the West Indies, joined the buccaneers. The secret of her sex was well preserved, and not a person knew that she was a woman.

Anne Prestwich, or Peter Prestwich, as she was known on the buccaneer, fell desperately in love with one of the sailors, Percival Whitford, a large, blue-eyed, flaxen haired, devil may care fellow, who, though he treated Anne in as friendly a manner as any one else, not knowing that she was a woman, had no thought of the tender passion.

Anne concealed her love, not daring to reveal it with a confession of her sex for fear that Percy would be repelled by the knowledge. For months she worshipped him in secret. Then an opportunity arose for revealing her love under the most favorable circumstances. Percy became involved in a quarrel with a sailor named Millikin, and a challenge passed. Whitford and Millikin were in different watches, and the duel could not take place until after eight bells in the afternoon. Shortly after dinner a number of the crew were jolling on the fore-castle, among them Anne Prestwich and Millikin.

"You'll make short work of the blue-eyed fellow," remarked one of the men to Millikin.

"If he does," said Anne, "I'll be by foul means."

"What?" cried Millikin, starting up, while the others looked thunderstruck.

"Didn't you hear?" replied Anne. "Cowards don't fight fair. They always manage to get some advantage."

"You dare say this to me?" shouted Millikin, standing on his feet and putting his hand to his knife.

"I say nothing except what's true," Millikin made a rush for Anne, but those present stood between.

"I'll have your life for this!" cried Millikin. "As soon as I get through with Whitford I'll attend to you."

"Why wait for that?" asked Anne coolly. "This is as good a time as any, and you'll have to wait till eight bells for Whitford."

"Agreed. I'll fight you now. Draw!"

"I have choice of weapons, and I choose swords," said Anne.

A ring was formed, a couple of ordinary swords were brought up from below, and the two opponents set to work. Anne, the ex-soldier, who had been drilled in sword exercise in barracks, from the first showed her superiority to Millikin, whose only practice had been in action with the cut-throat. She received a few scratches which her opponent intended for mortal wounds, and, watching her opportunity, ran him through the heart. Millikin dropped dead, and Anne, wiping her sword on her trousers, turned and went down the companionway.

When Whitford came off watch he had been told that there was no quarrel on his hands since Peter Prestwich had removed his antagonist. He went straight to Anne, whom he found in the fore-castle.

"Pete," he said, "what do you mean by taking my quarrel?"

"I had as good a right to fight him as you."

"But they say you insulted him without cause. Then you proposed to fight him before I had my turn with him."

"Yes; that's true."

"Well, it's plain that you stepped in between him and me. Millikin never injured you. Tell me why you have interfered to shield me?"

Anne turned away, but there was something in the glance she gave him that sent a thrill through him, though he did not know why.

The next day the buccaneer touched port at one of the coast towns, and when the first batch of shore leaves were granted it happened that Peter Prestwich and Percy Whitford were among the number who went ashore. When they reached the quay Anne went off by herself, while the others large tube-like slab, worn smooth by the storms of many winters.

Sky and sea were a bewildering of opal tints, with one fleecy, rose colored cloud near the horizon. The half a dozen sails in sight were touched into pale pink by the setting sun.

The girl's eyes swept it all. Then she stretched out her arms to the beautiful scene.

"Goodby," she whispered, and the eyes which Gordon could not see grew wet.

"Don't!"

His hand had closed over her arm with an intensity which hurt. To him these summer weeks had been as the birth of all things.

She turned to him, but backed from what she saw in his eyes. Then a shuddering breath broke from her. Her feet had slipped on the smooth rock. Wide, piteous eyes sought Gordon's as she felt herself sliding down the glass-like surface, where there was no hold, toward the ten foot depth of water, with its dreaded undertow.

The one glimpse he had of them went through Gordon like a physical hurt ere he threw himself, face downward, on the rock with both arms flung out. His hands touched her shoulders and fastened on them like a vise. There was a breathless moment when it seemed as if her weight must drag him over. Then, lightly as she would have lifted a pebble, his splendid arms drew her up beside him.

"Were you terribly frightened?" His voice vibrated with tenderness.

The girl shivered and swayed against him. Gordon picked her up and carried her to the cliff path above.

"I have not thanked you," she said then, but her eyes did not meet his.

"I am sorry you thought it necessary."

He walked beside her to the door of the pretty summer villa and stood with uncovered head. His heart died within him as he took the hand she silently held out and watched her white, troubled face. It was goodbye then, after all.

He had reached the end of the path when her voice came to him:

"Mr. Gordon!"

He turned.

"I think I do know, after all, where I shall be a week from today," Gordon came a step nearer.

"I have decided"—she paused deliberately and the look which she sent straight into Gordon's eyes went to his head like wine—"within the last half hour to accept the Houghtons' invitation to visit them next week in the White mountains."

He took the steps at a bound, but she had caught him.

"An avowal!" she called from half way up the staircase.

And the tender face which looked down held the promise of all that made life worth while for Gordon.

SECOND ELOPEMENT

In This Licking County Family in Three Months—
Miss Isadore Harrison and Mr. Merle Rugg
Ran Off to Newark to Wed.

The second elopement in the family of Mr. George Harrison of Jersey, within three months has just taken place.

Three months ago Mr. Harrison's daughter, Miss Lilah, ran away with Lester Alberry and was married, being forgiven upon her return home.

On Wednesday another daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison, Miss Mary Isadore, about 20 years of age, eloped with Mr. Francis Merle Rugg, a young liverman of Outville and was married in Newark.

Miss Isadore gave her mother to understand that she was going over to Buckeye Lake on the interurban car, but she left a note for her grandmother, Mrs. Wilkin, telling of her intention to marry Mr. Rugg.

The wedding took place at the home of L. J. Wise, 260 Granville street, the Rev. Lester S. Boyce, pastor of the First Presbyterian church officiating. The bride and groom returned home and fared as well as the bride's sister three months ago.

Parental forgiveness was freely granted, blessings were bestowed and the young couple were received with open arms.

BAKERS' PICNIC

A COUPLE ON HAND FOR PUBLIC WEDDING

But Backed Out at Last Moment—Result of the Horse Racing—Picnic A Big Success.

The annual picnic given by the local baker's union was an entire success, a large crowd going to Idlewild park during Wednesday afternoon and evening, to enjoy the day and participate in the pleasures of the occasion.

On account of the horse races being somewhat prolonged the rest of the program of sports was shortened, Henry Feldner winning the pie eating contest and John Smith the egg race.

The principal feature of the afternoon did not come off, owing to no fault of the bakers. This was the public marriage, which was advertised to take place after the ball game. The couple who had promised to be married were on hand but at the last moment backed out, and it was impossible then to secure any to take their places.

Dancing was enjoyed all afternoon and evening until a late hour, and both performances at the theatre were well attended.

The matinee races were run on the one-half mile track, James T. Murphy acting as starter. The summaries follow.

TOMORROW

IS THE DATE SET FOR THE Y. M. C. A. PICNIC

Cars to Run at Half Hour Intervals During the Afternoon and Evening—The Day's Program.

Tomorrow is the date for the big Y. M. C. A. picnic at Buckeye Lake. If the weather is pleasant an immense crowd will go.

All boys, whether members of the Junior department Y. M. C. A., or not are invited to go out to Buckeye Lake tomorrow morning on the special car at 8:30, and join in the various events of the Junior sports during the forenoon. Some fine prizes are offered. Come out boys and enjoy the fun.

Athletic Events.

The athletic contests which will be run off between 2 and 3 o'clock, or as soon as the afternoon crowd arrives, will be worth going out to see. A fine list of prizes have been offered for the winners by a number of the prominent merchants of the city. These prizes are on exhibition today in the window at Wiles & Erman's drug store.

The Prizes.

The Ball Games.

The Jewett team will take out their strongest nine and should be able to give the Y. M. C. A. team a good stiff game. They play at 3:30.

After that the Mail Carriers and Grocers cross bats. The mail clerks have been practicing for several weeks and play good ball. The grocers are somewhat an unknown quantity but if their work of former years is any criterion they may give the postmen a surprise.

The Evening's Program.

Two exhibition drills, a band concert and fireworks will give the glorious wadup.

A. O. U. W. and the Lady Maccabees Degree teams have been meeting for extra drills this week and will be prepared to do their very best work.

The A. O. U. W. boys in their natty new uniforms present a fine appearance and all who have ever seen the drill put on by the Lady Maccabees assure us that they will greatly please the people tomorrow.

Transportation.

Special cars will be run at 1 o'clock for those who wish to go out for the afternoon. After that they will run cars every half hour both ways until 10 o'clock at night.

THE CROPS

Farm Work Progressed Rapidly During the Week—Wheat Yield Disappointing in Ohio.

The Ohio weekly crop bulletin issued by the climate and crop service of the weather bureau, states that farm work, during the week, progressed satisfactorily, generally. Wheat is almost all cut and much has been put in barns and stacked. The yield is generally less than expected, but the quality averages generally good.

Corn has grown slowly; oats are ripening, rust reported from some sections; barley is not a heavy crop. Rye is only fair. The hay crop is generally good, better than expected.

Early potatoes are fairly good, tobacco is doing well, gardens and pastures continue fairly good. Many apples were blown from the trees in the north during the storm. Peaches, plums and pears are a light crop; grapes are good generally.

Cold weather prevailed during the week, the temperature remaining below the normal. There was marked excess of precipitation in the north, but droughty conditions are beginning to be met in the southern portion of the state.

American Protective Union annual picnic on Tuesday, July 28th at Buckeye Lake Park. Fare round trip 20 cents. Tickets for sale at their office Newark Saving bank or from the members as they will not be sold at the street car ticket office. 7-22-6t
